MIT International Development Network

When to get involved...
TODAY! September 29, 2006
International Development Fair
1-3 pm, Lobby 13

Who we are...
We are students and staff who collaborate to publicize the exciting array of activities at MIT that contribute to international development.

What we do...
We communicate international development involvement opportunities here at MIT and connect interested people:

- We organize the MIT International Development Fair each year
- We plan small events to connect groups working on similar issues
- We host a website to publicize events, activities, and other opportunities for understanding and involvement
- We advise students and try to connect them with resources

How to get involved...
- Submit information for the IDN website — let us showcase your events and opportunities: idn-contact@mit.edu
- Participate in the International Development Fair and let the MIT community know about your group
- Offer comments and ideas
- Join our International Development Network planning team
- Become a sponsor and help to support understanding and involvement in international development work through MIT

Visit us on the web at http://web.mit.edu/idn
or email us at idn-contact@mit.edu