

Leadership at MIT Sloan

Deborah Ancona

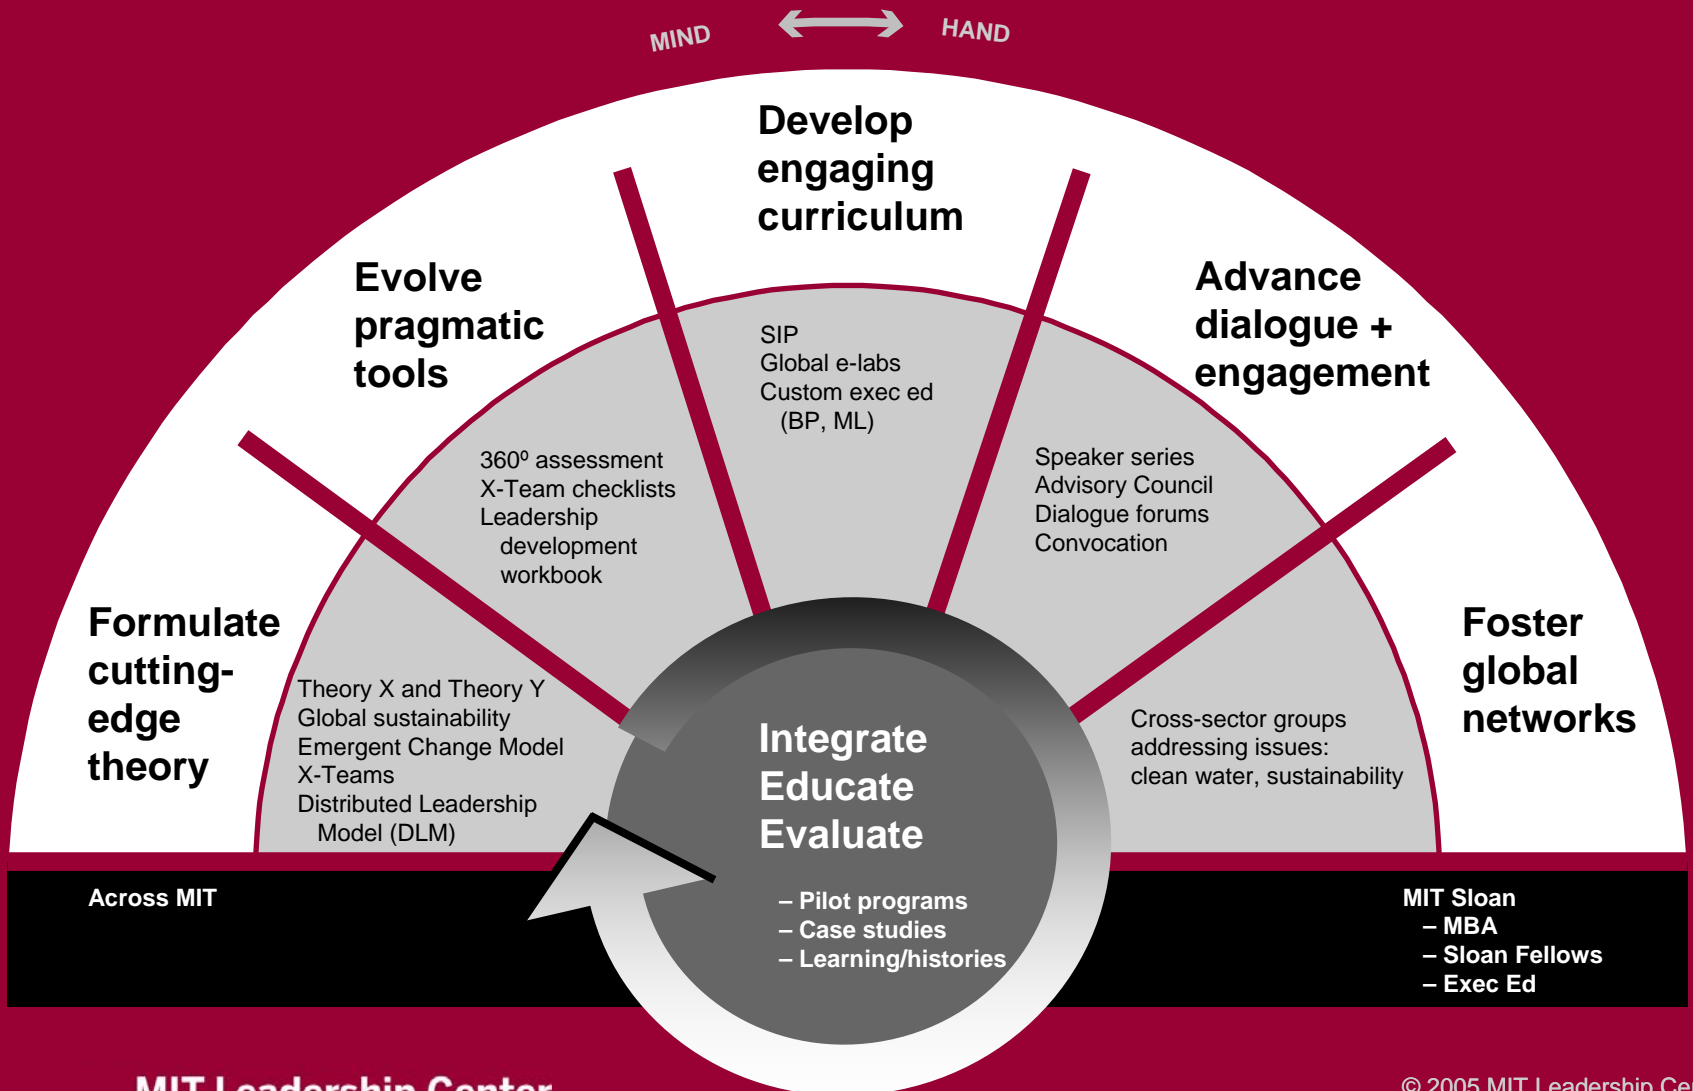

MIT Leadership Center

MIT Leadership Center

Creating theory and tools to enable leaders to solve complex, global challenges

MIND ↔ HAND

MIT Leadership Center

© 2005 MIT Leadership Center

Lots of Experimentation and Adaptation

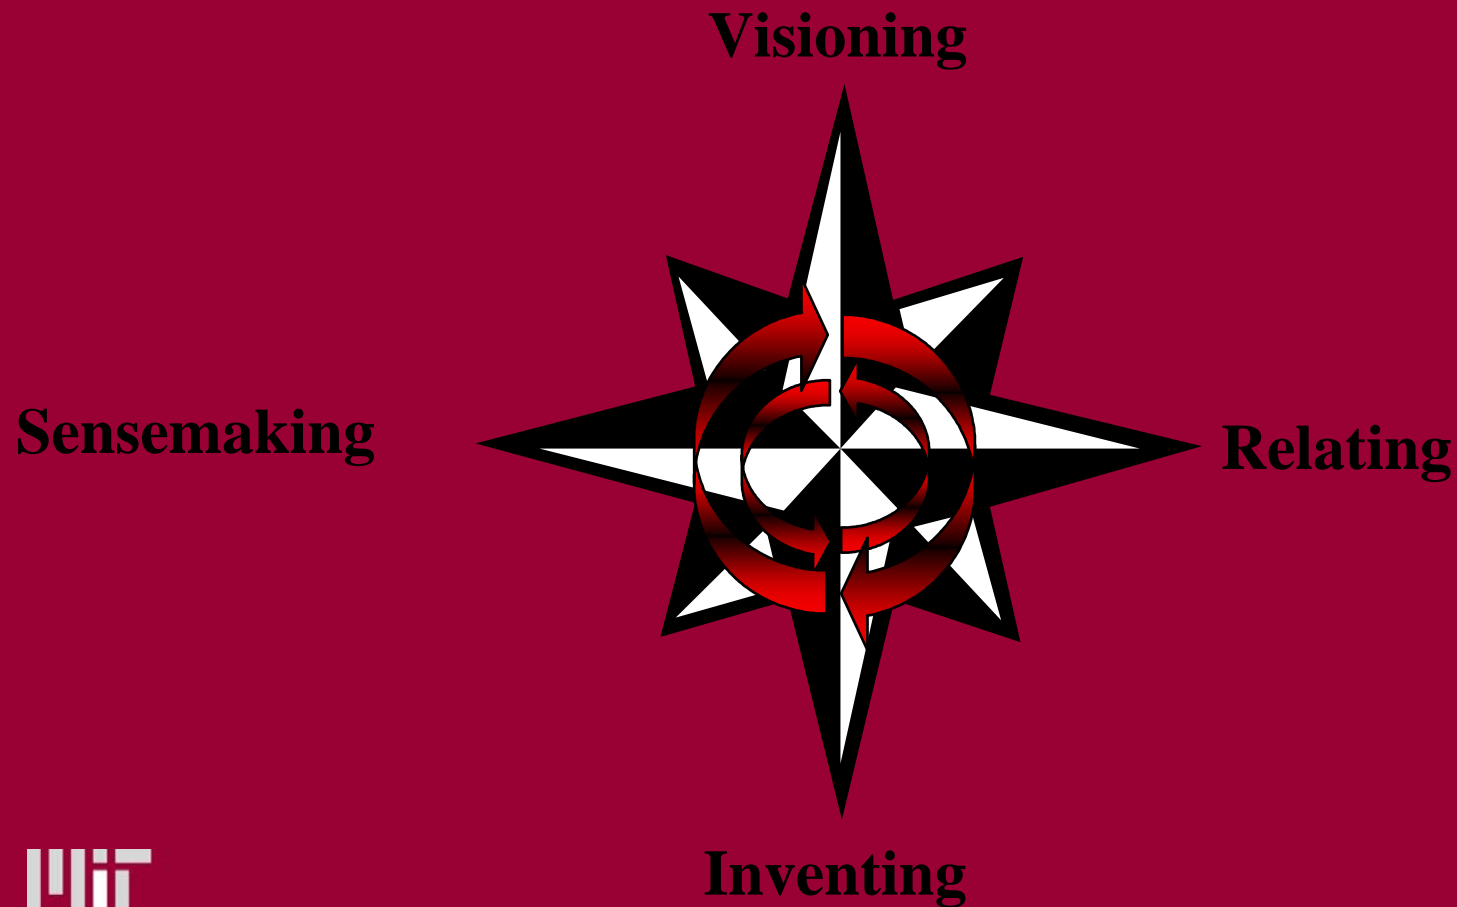

What Works?

- a. Simple, research-based, actionable models
- b. Tools associated with those models
- c. Leadership plus
- d. Leadership in action plus support
- e. Multiple modes of learning not one size fits all
- f. Theory and practice in constant dialogue
- g. Small, committed faculty group
- h. Setting expectations – creating a culture
- i. Be bold – Do what you want to do - Invent

a. Simple, Research-based, Actionable Models

b. Tools Associated with Models

Scouting Activity

- o Investigate the problem, issue or opportunity
- o Investigate current BP practices
- o Investigate competitors and outside experts
- o Investigate yourselves and how you view the problem
- o Investigate Projects Academy tools

Ambassadorial Activity

- o Consider what management or functional support is needed
- o Create buy-in from the start
- o Identify allies and adversaries

Task Coordinator Activity

- o Identify dependencies
- o Actively collaborate with PA community

Team management

- o Get to know team members
- o Set roles and norms for the team
- o Brainstorm and make decisions
- o Organize yourselves to carry out sensemaking and relating

c. Leadership Plus

- ML – with Andrew Lo
- BP – with Engineering, Systems Dynamics and Value Chain
- G-Lab – with International Entrepreneurship

d. Leadership in Action Plus Support

- Project-based learning:
 - BP, CVRD, I-Teams, Tiger Teams, G-Lab...

- Support:
 - Check-ins, coaching, assessment

e. Multiple Modes of Learning

f. Theory and Practice in Constant Dialogue

John Reed meets Karl Weick

g. Small, Committed Faculty Group

- We wish we were PIMO
- “A small group of thoughtful people could change the world. Indeed it is the only thing that ever has.”

h. Setting Expectations – Creating a Culture

“We expect you to be leaders.”

i. Be Bold – Do What You Want to Do - Invent

SIP, Workshops, Cross-sector (Elias), Leadership in Action

